

Introduction to Composting

Become a Soil Farmer

When: Wednesday July 28, 2021
10:00 am to 11:00 am

Where: Webinar via ZOOM

Food2Soil is a composting collective based in San Diego. They have been transform food scraps into soil and “green” jobs since 2015. They are building community centered hubs all over San Diego. They are seeking to expand the network and to work with tribal communities to offer community centered composting services on your reservation. The Soil Farmer program is designed to allow individuals to compost for themselves and neighbors. Learn about composting techniques and best practices. Food2Soil can help set up composting bins and tools. They will even teach community members how they can earn money creating organic soil. This will be the first series on composting and zero waste practices. Let Food2Soil become a trusted partner in composting.
